WEDDING BELLS

MARR—KING

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the Cereal United Church on Saturday afternoon, November 21st, when Mary Isabel, eldest daughter of Mrs. M. King and the late T. V. King of Cereal became the bride of Thomas Lester, second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Allan Marr of Chinook Alberta.

Rev. L. G. Stapleton of Oyen performed the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by J. C. Cottrell, wore a two piece afternoon dress of beige crepe with brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Her sister, Laurel, as bridesmaid, wore a two piece afternoon dress of Elizabeth blue with black accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. G. Albert Marr, brother of the groom was best man. Mrs. Evans of Cereal played the wedding march.

The bride and groom left immediately after the reception which was held at the home of the bride's mother, for a short honeymoon in Calgary.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Marr will reside on their farm situated six miles southwest of Chinook.

Their many friends wish for them a very happy and prosperous married life.

JACQUES—JONES

St. Mary's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty wedding on Nov. 21, when Betty Rhea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Given Jones of Arrowwood, became the bride of Private Norman E. Jacques, of the Canadian Postal Corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Jacques of Arrowwood, Mgr. J. S. Smith officiated.

The bride wore a cocoa brown wool suit trimmed with silver fox, and a corsage of yellow roses.

Miss Dorothy Jean Jones, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid wore a turquoise wool suit, with touches of brown hand embroidery, and a small brown hat. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses.

The best man was Mr. Gerald Jacques, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Jacques, 508 2nd Ave. W. for a few close friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacques will reside in Saskatoon.

The groom was a former Chinook boy.

A STATEMENT about BUTTER

In spite of the fact that in some Canadian cities butter supplies recently have not been sufficient to meet the greatly increased demands, the situation does not constitute an emergency; nor is it as serious as some people seem to think. There are two main causes for these temporary and local shortages:

For the past year we have been consistently using 10% to 15% more butter than in normal times—with consequent disturbance to the distribution of our butter supplies.

Many people have been buying more butter than they currently need.

The limited nature of the present shortage is shown by the fact that if every home would reduce its consumption of butter by only one ounce per person per week (for the average home this means a quarter of a pound a week)—or if we reduced our national consumption to the peacetime rate—the shortage would soon disappear.

There is no Reason for Panic Buying

It is unpatriotic and unnecessary for housewives to rush out to beat their neighbors to the nearest grocery store. Butter will not be rationed to meet the present situation. Butter production is actually above normal for this time of year. The Board itself is taking special action which it is believed will speedily restore normal supplies in retail stores.

HOW TO SAVE BUTTER

AT MEAL-TIME

1. Use butter only for spreading on bread.
2. Never use butter just out of the refrigerator. Wait until it is soft enough to spread easily.
3. Add a small amount of milk when creaming butter for sandwiches.

IN COOKING

1. Do not use butter in baking and cooking, when lard, shortening or meat dripping can be used.
2. Use level measurements of butter. . . . Guesswork means waste.
3. When adding cheese to a cream or white sauce, use only half amount of butter stated in recipe.
4. Use paper wrappings from butter to grease baking dishes.
5. Do not use butter for re-warming vegetables.
6. Serve meat gravy to avoid the use of extra butter on potatoes.
7. When adding butter to vegetable dishes, add it sparingly. Do not melt it and then pour on.

These supplies will however be adequate for normal consumption, if housewives in all parts of Canada co-operate.

You can help in these ways:

Scrupulously avoid waste and extravagance. Waste is wrong at all times. In time of war it is sabotage.

Reduce present consumption of butter by at least one ounce per person per week—for the average home this means a quarter of a pound a week.)

Do not buy more than is needed for immediate use.

The Outlook For Agriculture

WESTERN CANADA has just produced one of the largest crops in the history of this great wheat growing area. Of the 550,000,000 bushels said to have been harvested, the government has contracted to buy about 280,000,000 bushels. Because of the curtailment of world markets due to the war, much of this crop will not be moved for the present, and so far it has provided the farmers with many problems in the matters of securing help for the large scale harvesting operations, and in finding storage space for this large quantity of wheat. So far, this year's crop has not proved to be of great advantage to the farmer, but in a recent report on the agricultural situation in Canada, issued by the Bank of Nova Scotia, there are some interesting observations concerning the economic situation of the farmers now, and the outlook for agriculture in the next few months.

Cash Income Shows Increase

For Western Canada, the report predicts an increase in the farmer's cash income over that of the past year. This will be due partly to the increase in the price of wheat, and partly to the expansion in the production of dairy and livestock products. For the whole of Canada, an increase of 15% over 1941 is expected in the farmer's cash income. This represents about $130,000,000, and would bring the farmer's cash income to over a billion dollars, for the first time since 1928. Higher cost of farm labor, and a higher price level for feed, offsets some of the advantage of this increased income. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports an advance of more than 20% in the wages of day labor since 1941, and an advance of 30% in monthly wages in the same period. Partly the output for the farmer was not as great as the figures might indicate, however, since much less labor was hired at the higher wage rate. Labor conditions are considered to be at present unfavorable to the farmers. Figures recently issued by the Bank of Canada show that the supply of farm labor has decreased by 20% since the war began, and by 9% in the past year. This situation has been relieved somewhat by the recruiting of harvest help from the cities, and by women assuming a greater amount of farm work. There has been noted too, an increase in the amount of machinery purchased by farmers. In 1941 over $2,000,000 worth of machinery was purchased in excess of the amount purchased in 1940. Of this, $1,000,000 was for dairy equipment.

A Shortage Of Skilled Labor

In spite of all this there is a serious shortage of skilled farm labor, and it is hoped that possibly this situation may shortly be rectified through the operation of Selective Service. In summing up, the report states that with the recent adjustment of beef and bacon prices, and the higher and better balanced price structure which has been established for dairy products, the period of adjustment of farm products may now be over, and the new prices may prove incentives for greater production. The facts given in the report show clearly the very important part agriculture is playing in the war effort, and the way in which production is being carried on despite the labor shortage. The demands of the home market have increased greatly in the past months, yet acute shortages of farm products have been averted. At the same time contracts of unprecedented size are being fulfilled for Britain and for the armed forces here. In maintaining production on this scale, the agricultural industry is indeed playing a major role in the winning of the war.

Non-Essential Foods In The Diet

The luncheon or supper meal can be a very attractive one, full of the necessary food elements, if the proper care is exercised in preparation and planning beforehand. Too many people serve the usual slab of cold meat and potato salad without any attempt whatsoever to make this meal appetizing, wholesome and well-balanced.

Children coming home after school is out, their appetites fairly shouting for plenty of good, wholesome food, should be served a meal which will restore the energies they have expended and build firm, healthy bones and tissue. Sausages and fried potatoes followed by doughnuts and jam for a alter may sound rather nice to the average child, but though expensive foods, they do not contain nearly enough vitamins and minerals necessary to the growing body. So much fried food, too, is difficult to digest.

There are two types of lunches. A comparison will show at once what is meant:

HIGH VALUE LUNCH
Fried Liver and Potatoes
Roasted Whole Roast Chicken
Sundwich
Custard and Celery Salad
Apples or Applesauce and Cream
Milk

LOW VALUE LUNCH
Fried Sausage and Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes
White Bread and Butter
Doughnuts and Jam
Tea

The high value lunch shows imagination in planning, is nicely balanced, with no preponderance of any one type of food as in the low value lunch, and consists of food containing the essential vitamins and minerals. The children, too, will enjoy this kind of meal much more.

Automobile Care

To Keep Your Car Running Avoid Battery Abuse

As time goes on the care of present automobiles assumes first line importance. As tires wear out and gasoline ration coupons are used up, the car must be given attention. Consumer Information Service points out.

If car owners in town and country will exercise common sense the life of the car's battery, which is a very important consideration, will be extended. Useless starting should be avoided. Some people have the bad habit of not looking for the cause of starting trouble until the battery has been exhausted.

Periodic battery inspection and filling should be done by a reputable service station. It is advisable to have the battery checked once a week at the same time car air is put into the tires and other check-ups are being made.

Car owners should make certain that nothing is added to the battery solution but approved water, unless it has been thoroughly established that some electrolyte has been lost.

It is a good idea to glance at the ammeter on the car's dashboard occasionally, and if it shows "discharge" during the daytime or is not operating at all, an immediate call at the service station is suggested.

Seventy-Year-Old Ontario Woman Proud Of Her Trade

The war-time girl has proven herself capable of handling many jobs supposed to be for men only, but 70-year-old Mrs. Edward Newton, of Horning's Mills, Ont., has been hanging paper and painting houses for the last 30 years and is proud of her trade. Says Mrs. Newton, "I did the work just as easy now as I ever did and expect to carry on indefinitely." Mrs. Newton started as a professional paperhanger and painter 30 years ago when she married and until the death of her husband three years ago, she was his assistant. After Mr. Newton's death she continued with the business and almost any day may be seen atop a ladder painting or deftly hanging paper.

NEWS of your Army

From Directorate of Public Relations Army

Private Mary Smith enlisted in the C.W.A.C. early in October. She had been a linotype operator, and while anxious to do her part, was puzzled as to what place she could have in the Army. She was tested and during the course of the interview it was discovered that she had had high school education and that her job in civilian life had required a high degree of speed and accuracy. These factors, together with Pte. Smith's quiet, pleasant manner suggested to the Army Examiner that she would be best suited to a job requiring manual dexterity and tact in dealing with people. Now Pte. Smith is happily training to be a dental chair assistant.

Jean Brown is another newcomer to the ranks of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. When she enlisted, she thought her place might be as a cook. The Personnel Selection officer who interviewed her found out by careful questioning that she had worked in the Wrens in England during the last war and had had a great deal of experience in handling rationals as well as in actual cooking. She has now been placed in a large centre as senior cook and assistant to the messing officer, where her practical experience is being put to good use.

Keystone Of Army

This all-important matter of fitting round pegs into round holes is one which is occupying the attention of experts in the Directorate of Personnel Selection in the Canadian Active Army. This Directorate in Ottawa, working under the Adjutant-General and directed by Colonel W. Line, comprises a staff of practical men and women whose qualifications, in addition to careful military training and personnel work include applied psychology. Throughout Canada 211 officers, called Army Examiners are engaged in this branch of work which has been called the keystone of the Army and has been responsible for fitting the new recruits into the Army into a few broad groupings with respect to their ability to learn quickly the duties of a soldier.

The first C.W.A.C. training centre to try out the new idea was Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, P.Q. and now it is being successfully carried out at No. 3 C.W.A.C. Basic Training Centre, Kitchener, Ont., and at Vermilion, Alberta. Every person at the training centre is given a special test and is personally interviewed by one of the officers. This work is done as soon as possible after the recruit arrives in order that the results may be used in placing the volunteer with a minimum loss of time.

Experts At Work
Working on the principle that "the right man or woman in the right place can mean a battle won, and that the wrong man or woman in the wrong job can cause untold confusion and delay," Colonel Line and his staff are giving serious thought to the selection of the group responsible for the smooth-working of the personnel selection service. Army Examiners realize that there is no substitute for actually trying out the man or woman on the job whenever that is possible. But when it is a matter of classifying very large numbers of individuals the job of trying out becomes impossible.

ing centres is interviewed before she is posted to her ultimate duties. Though one of several hundred young women at the training centre, she nevertheless remains an individual, and her work her behavior and her general adaptability to the new life does not go unnoticed by the officers and N.C.O.'s with whom she is brought in contact. At the end of her training she is classified under one of the prescribed categories. Officers' qualifications include reliability, determination, initiative, tact, temperament, loyalty, leadership, personal habits, imagination, tactical and general knowledge, perception, judgment, commonsense and ability to teach.

The time entailed in this determining the type of work for which a recruit is best suited, could not be taken at the recruiting office and it has been found that recruits are more apt to discuss in a friendly, sympathetic atmosphere, matters regarding their previous occupations, trades and qualifications which they might overlook in the bustle of the recruiting office.

HALFWAY HOUSE

— BY — MICHAEL TRENT

CHAPTER VIII

Anne returned to Halfway House shortly after midnight and found the guests gathered on the side verandah to watch the spectacle. The fire was at the far end of the lake five miles away, yet it seemed very near. They could see a wall of flame, crackling roar of sound carried to them on a steady breeze, and the acrid smell of smoke was in the air they breathed. There was an awareness of danger; noticeably, the blast was working southward toward the hotel.

Anne tried to reassure the others, telling them that the blaze had been discovered in time and that it was already being fought. She wanted them to believe they were in no danger at Halfway House.

"How relieving to know we're safe. I suppose your ranger friends are fighting the fire for us like heroes," Rhea Marshall said.

"I wouldn't say they are doing it for us. I assume they are mostly concerned with saving the timber. They know we can leave if necessary."

"I'd rather think they were being heroes for us," said the dark girl. Her eyes had a sultry look.

"Wouldn't you, Miss Lowry?" Anne smiled, saying nothing. She was unable to understand the girl's veiled sarcasm or her deliberate reference to the Rhea Marshall.

"Draw in those claws, Rhea," she said sharply. "You're too good at being cat. You have Miss Lowry at a disadvantage."

Rhea said "Silence" with a narrowing look at Anne. She moved languidly to the doorway. She made a picture; she was in a white evening dress skillfully revealing her legs and there touch of red, and wore her beauty with a casualness. In the doorway she paused, slowly faced about. Her voice still had that velvet-covered barb.

"By the way," she said, "where is Mr. Blake? I haven't seen him about since dinner."

Her manner made it appear that she spoke to the gathering, but her glance rested on Anne. Then, without awaiting an answer, she turned and went inside. Anne watched her cross the lobby and mount the stairs, knowing now that the girl had heard that conversation between her and her. More, Rhea said to know what that conversation had meant—and wanted Anne to know she knew. Eric's secret wasn't a secret any longer. Anne was frightened. She went inside to find her father. Drew Lowry was resting in the office of the lobby.

"Eric?" he said, in reply to her question. "I really don't know where he is. I haven't seen him about all evening." His pale, tired face showed concern. "You don't think he has left?"

And Anne said, "I almost hope he has. Yes, I do hope he has!"

The fire burned on. Men converged upon the Indian Lake watershed from lumber camp and town, from mountain cabin and ranch. It was 3 o'clock when Eric Kruger showed up. Anne was switching off the lobby lights when he entered.

His face and hands were smoke blackened, his clothes were soiled and torn, and somewhere he had lost coat and tie. His eyes were red-rimmed, and he looked physically ill in as he sank into a chair. Anne saw him smile; she did not return it.

"Eric, where have you been?" "To the fire, Anne. I have been working like a machine."

"You were there helping?" "Yes. Don't look so surprised."

Anne wasn't surprised. She knew if her face showed anything it was alarm. "You shouldn't have been there," she said. "Not among all those men. The rangers—"

"MIDDLE-AGE" WOMEN (35-52)

READ THIS ADVICE!
No more coast, restless, nervous, sleepless nights, disquieting, no more periods in a woman's life. Dr. R. K. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Made especially for women. Hundreds of thousands of women helped. Follow label directions. Made in Canada.

Steve took off his coat and campaign hat, tossed them into a chair, then turned and took her in his arms. They were alone in the lobby. He kissed her.

He said, "I'm late, honey, but it couldn't be helped. We turned up something at the fire last night. It was incendiary—deliberately set. We found evidence that can't be doubted."

Anne said, "But who would set fire—?" And she instantly thought she knew. The belief was so sudden it had an impact that took her breath away. She felt cold with fright. Eric, her father had told her and Rhea Marshall had hinted, had been away from Halfway House all last evening. She could remember Eric saying, when he returned, that the fire could cover his escape. Her face must have shown horror, for Steve put his arm about her.

"It's as bad as that," he said. "I've been working on it all day, and I'm plenty tired. Do you think you could give me a drink?"

"Certainly, Steve. Come into the lounge."

They went to the little bar, and she mixed him a cocktail. From the corner of her eyes she saw Eric across the room watching Steve with a dark intensity. She also saw Rhea Marshall come up to the bar.

Rhea said, "Could I have a martini, Miss Lowry? A dry one?" Her voice was soft, but husky, as with some strange emotion. She had approached from behind Steve, but her voice brought him swinging about. Anne could not see Steve's face then, his broad back being toward her, but she did see the way Rhea Marshall looked at him with a bright light in her eyes and a slow smile touching her lips. And she didn't like that. There was a moment of quiet that was static. Anne felt that she had to say something.

She said, "Miss Marshall, this is Mr. Hayes—"

And the dark-haired girl softly said, "An introduction really isn't necessary, Miss Lowry. Mr. Hayes and I know one another—very well. You see, I happen to be Mrs. Steve Hayes."

Bring Sun To Children Via Vitamin D

When "Old Sol" shines brightly overhead in the summertime, and lightly clad children spend hours out of doors nature's marvellous chemistry allows them to manufacture their own supply of the sunshine Vitamin D.

Vitamin D is essential for babies and children, for without it they cannot develop strong bones. Children who do not get enough Vitamin D develop bow legs and other symptoms of rickets.

Nutrition Services points out that in cities, where the air is filled with smoke and dust, the ability of the sun's rays to provide Vitamin D cannot be relied upon, as the health-giving rays cannot penetrate the smoke screen.

Adults too, probably need Vitamin D; expectant and nursing mothers certainly need it, for it helps to develop strong bones and teeth in the unborn baby and safeguards the mother's health.

Vitamin D, unfortunately, cannot be supplied in sufficient amounts from foods, but luckily fish liver oils supply it in abundance. That is why doctors prescribe cod, or some other form of fish liver oil for babies from the time they are a few weeks old. This should be continued through childhood and adolescence. It may be omitted during the summer months.

"Best Yet" Muffins—Made With Apples And Bran

It would be hard to find a muffin with a finer flavor or a sweeter fragrance than these Spicy Apple All-Bran Muffins! The apple gives them a tartness accented by the spices, while the bran gives a glorious nut-like taste and a tempting golden brown crust. Happily, they're easily made by following this recipe:

|--|--|
| 1 cup shortening1/2 cup sugar1/2 cup egg2 cups flour1/2 teaspoon salt3/4 teaspoon baking powder2 tablespoons sugar1/4 teaspoon cinnamon1/4 teaspoon nutmeg1/2 cup Kellogg's All-Bran1 cup milk1 cup finely chopped raw apple | 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon1/4 teaspoon nutmeg1/2 cup Kellogg's All-Bran1 cup milk1 cup finely chopped raw apple |
|--|--|

Cream shortening and sugar, add egg and beat well. Sift flour with baking powder, salt, cinnamon, and nutmeg. Add All-Bran. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Fold in apples. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full; sprinkle with mixture of sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. Makes 20 muffins (2 1/2 inches in diameter).

Germination Tests and Dormancy
 Two years ago, we installed two germination tests with electrical temperature control and invited farmers to submit samples of their small grain seeds for testing. Nearly 5,000 farmers' samples were tested. Last year, 1941, samples passed through our laboratory.

What may be expected of us this year, remains to be seen. We shall do our best to meet all demands; but take this opportunity to urge farmers to bring their seed samples into grain buyers for forwarding to us at the earliest possible date, and to enable us to spread the work over a long season. We are certain to be taxed (with samples) to the limit in February and March.

Last fall we announced the installation of a refrigerating pre-chiller. The purpose of this was to enable us to begin testing early without fear of winter-killing the dormancy can be broken. To make sure that our machine was doing the job well, we tested 54 samples in November with and without pre-chilling. Then the following January, and again in May, we re-tested without pre-chilling.
 Results: November, pre-chilled, 80%;
 November, not pre-chilled, 60%;
 January, not pre-chilled, 60 per cent and May, not pre-chilled, 83 per cent.
 Thus, our pre-chiller enabled us to get accurate results in November which could otherwise only have been obtained the following spring.

Post War Facts

The problems of post-war farming in Canada will be tremendous. What markets will absorb the 6 1/2 million hogs, the 125 million pounds of cheese, the 45 million dozen eggs which the farmers of Canada are producing as a war effort?

What numbers of new settlers can be absorbed into agriculture without ruin to those now engaged in that occupation and to themselves?

How can the increased production made possible by mechanical invention, and by scientific discovery, be utilized instead of creating the nightmare of undistributed surpluses? Will the blessings of abundance bring ruin to farmers?

Shall one-sixth of our population subsist on an inadequate nutritional diet while fruit rots on the trees and flocks and herds are reduced?

These are some of the many problems which confront Canada in the settlement of a post-war economy.

There are those who believe that the post-war period should bring a relinquishing of the present controls as rapidly as possible, their ideal being a complete absence of governmental control over industry.

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture, representing 450,000 organized farmers believes that the tremendous problems of post-war settlement cannot be successfully solved without deliberate planning, with its corollary of control. They recognize the dangers of bureaucracy, but believe that the mistakes of a planned economy will be fewer and less painful than the jungle law of the survival of the fittest, and the disastrous booms and depressions which result from the uncontrolled or unregulated law of supply and demand.

In the solution of these problems industry, commerce, labor and agriculture must join hands, recognizing them as matters of national and not of group interest.
